

EXECUTIVE WATCH

We are pleased to welcome Ms Grace Kenganzi to Centre for Health Human Rights and Development (CEHURD) as our Communications Manager.

Ms Grace Kenganzi has worked in media and communications for nine years. Before she joined us, she was an editor with Monitor Publications Limited. She brings with her, experience in journalism, strategic communication, stakeholder engagement and management. Her skills fits into our work in making an impact through CEHURD's five-year strategic plan, 2020 - 2024.

Our communications team and the entire staff are delighted to have yet another essential block to amplify our work! We extend our warmest welcome and good wishes as she joins the CEHURD dynamic team.

"I am excited to join the CEHURD family because of the opportunity it provides to innovate in light of a dynamic communications landscape, especially as the organisation implements a new strategic plan. The fact that I get to use not just my professional skill set but also a bubbly personality to contribute to social justice in health is a big bonus."

Ms Grace Kenganzi