

CEHURD
social justice in health

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

THE MEDIA FELLOWSHIP 2023

THE ROLE OF MEDIA IN ACHIEVING REPRODUCTIVE EQUITY

30 SLOTS AVAILABLE

Introduction

Center for Health, Human Rights and Development (CEHURD) invites applications for the media fellowship on sexual reproductive health and rights, 2023. The media fellowship is aimed at expounding on the role of media in achieving reproductive equity for young people in Uganda. It also aims at building a network of journalists who can boldly report on sexual and reproductive health and rights for young people in Uganda and beyond

About the media fellowship

This year's fellowship is designed to strengthen capacities of media personnel in progressive and positive reporting about SRHR. Media plays a fundamental role on advancing reproductive equity once equipped with accurate and appropriate information on sexual and reproductive health and rights. The focus for this year's fellowship is SRHR for young people in Uganda and beyond.

The fellowship is also an opportunity to work on both visible and invisible issues, including but not limited to; Sexuality education and SRHR information to young people, reproductive equity, policy advocacy for SRHR in Uganda and East Africa, self-care as a component of SRHR, and gender justice.

This fellowship will empower journalists with knowledge and information to contribute to the creation of a supportive environment for SRHR. The media fellowship will cover the state of SRHR in Uganda; the policy and legal environment on young people's SRHR in Uganda and East Africa, and how journalists can report from a gender just and human rights perspective; the finer points of investigative journalism, how to make a good story pitch and, strategic communications and messaging.

How to apply

If you believe you are the ideal candidate for this fellowship, please fill out the application form and submit it along with your academic credentials via info@cehurd.org and copy nabunya@cehurd.org

Application Deadline

19th June, 2023

The media fellowship training is residential and will happen early July 2023.

Qualifications

Eligible journalists for the fellowship will be expected to have the following qualifications:

- A minimum of a diploma in journalism, development studies, social sciences, development communications or any other related field.
- Experience of at least two years in journalism, practising with an established media house
- Recommendation letter from the editor or producer.
- Interest in developing a career path in sexual and reproductive health and rights reporting for young people
- Must NOT have participated in any past CEHURD SRHR media fellowships

About CEHURD

The Center for Health, Human Rights and Development (CEHURD) is a non-governmental, not-for-profit indigenous research and advocacy organisation established in 2010 to pioneer advocacy for the justiciability of the right to health in Uganda and East Africa, and with a regional and global impact. CEHURD works towards ensuring access to social justice in health and human rights for the most vulnerable communities.

CehurdUganda

CehurdUG

Cehurd256